Delta Announces Nonstop Service From Silicon Valley’s Airport to New York’s JFK

Four airlines now offer nonstop service between San José and New York-area airports

SAN JOSÉ, CA – Delta Air Lines has responded to Silicon Valley’s strong passenger demand for more nonstop service to the New York City area by announcing daily nonstop service between Mineta San José International Airport (SJC) and New York’s John F. Kennedy International Airport (JFK) starting June 8, 2018.

“New York remains the most sought-after destination for Silicon Valley business and leisure travelers, and we enthusiastically welcome Delta Air Lines’ plans to add a new nonstop flight to JFK,” said San José Mayor Sam Liccardo. “We thank Delta for their confidence and investment in Silicon Valley’s Airport and wish the airline much success of this SJC-JFK route.”

Delta’s onboard experience will be on Boeing 737-800 aircraft, equipped with on-demand entertainment, power ports and in-flight Wi-Fi access at every seat. Delta will offer seating for 16 in First Class, 36 in Comfort+ and 108 in the main cabin.

“We’ve heard loud and clear from our Bay Area customers that nonstop service to New York City is important to them, and we’re pleased to offer this new daily flight starting next spring,” said Ranjan Goswami, Delta’s Vice President, Sales-West. “In addition to New York City access, this flight enables convenient connections to dozens of cities at our JFK hub to the Northeast and internationally.”

The new Delta flight will operate as follows:

With four carriers flying nonstop to New York-area airports, SJC now offers an even more desirable menu of flight options throughout the day.”

JetBlue currently operates daily nonstop flights between SJC and JFK, while United and Alaska Airlines offer daily nonstop flights to Newark.
